2nd Quarter, 2008
WLFI-TV

Agriculture and Business

Tippecanoe County's economy was boosted in the second quarter when TRW Corporation announced plans to expand its existing operation in Lafayette and build a second facility just outside the city limits. TRW plans to add 200 employees, for a total of 550 when the new construction is complete.

A decaying motel in a highly visible West Lafayette location was demolished for construction of a new housing and retail development. Champions Center will replace the former Family Inn on Northwestern Avenue.

Wind farming continued to make news during the quarter, with Orion Energy's Benton County Wind Farm beginning to supply Duke Energy with power. Orion had 87 turbines in operation. Late in the quarter, Horizon Energy announced plans to build a wind farm in White County.

Crime

Plans for the Tippecanoe County Juvenile Justice Center began to take shape during the quarter. Architects working on the project re-worked design and cost proposals for the center after the initial estimate of $25.2 million was considered too costly. The estimated cost for the center, which would be able to house about 35 juvenile offenders, is now $15 million to $17 million.

Lafayette Police said they have seen an increase in the number of crimes using popular toy air pistols. In at least two instances police said teenagers used air pistols to rob stores.

Local prosecutors and police introduced a new crime-fighting tool to the community during the second quarter. After one month of operation more than 75 calls had been made to the new WeTip Hotline.

Education

The West Lafayette Community School Board decided on plans to build an addition to Cumberland Elementary School and demolish the now-closed Burtsfield Elementary School.

WLFI explained how Indiana's new property tax relief law could have unexpected consequences for local school corporations. The law would allow for "open enrollment," giving parents more flexibility in where their children attend schools. The station explained how this could also affect property values, which can be affected by school corporations' reputations.

Roads and Transportation

Police departments in Lafayette and West Lafayette announced they were considering the installation of cameras at certain intersections in an effort to curtail red light running.

West Lafayette began its study of the proposal by installing cameras at two intersections to gauge the number of drivers running red lights. The second half of the study is scheduled for September.

Gasoline prices continued to climb during the quarter, eventually reaching a record $4.19 per gallon. Drivers began to admit they were changing habits in an effort to cut down on gas consumption. Many also turned to alternative methods of transportation including public transportation and mopeds.
